 Ethiopian Orthodox Tewahedo Church

Christianity in Ethiopia

Christianity is the majority religion in the country. The Ethiopian Orthodox Tewahedo Church is the largest denomination, representing 50% of the population. Other Christian denominations include Protestants and Catholics.

Islam is the second-largest religion, with the Sunni branch being the most prevalent. The country has a rich Islamic history, and many residents practice traditional Islamic customs and beliefs.

Other religions include Judaism, Hinduism, and Buddhism, among others. The government grants religious freedom, and residents are encouraged to practice their faiths without interference.

In summary, Ethiopia is a diverse country with a complex religious landscape, where Christianity is dominant, followed by Islam and other faiths.
